ABSTRACT

The booklet provides charts on approximately 60 facilities serving the postsecondary level learning disabled adult. Entries are listed alphabetically by state and include information which classifies each facility according to the following categories: age served, full/part time, career education, vocational training, residential schooling, independent living, full day schooling, crisis intervention, tutoring (remedial), testing, counseling, camp-travel, visual training, free meeting space, and other. In addition, the document lists colleges offering programs to learning disabled students, self help groups for the learning disabled, publications to aid the learning disabled adult in decision making, and other organizations related to serving this population. The compilation of information in this first edition of the Listing of Services for the Postsecondary LD Adult was gathered, in part, by a survey of more than 2200 centers in North America. Other sources on the state and federal level were surveyed.

Academic Therapy Publications is most anxious to expand the number of listings so that the value of this service becomes broader for the LD adult. We urge users to submit information regarding other services not included in this first edition.

Single copies of this LISTING are available at no charge. Send requests to:

COLLEGE PROGRAMS

The following list of colleges offering programs to LD students came to us in response to the questionnaire mailed to more than 2,000 individuals and facilities. This list is comparatively short but is based on solid data and personal experience.

For a more comprehensive list, write The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and request a copy of "Getting Through College With a Disability," a summary of services available on 500 campuses for students with handicapping conditions, Washington, D. C. 20210.

Many community (two-year) colleges now have programs for students with learning disabilities. Contact your local community college and ask to be put in touch with the student services counselor.

SELF-HELP GROUPS

Because of the recent (and long overdue) awareness of the adult with learning disabilities, a number of individuals and groups throughout the nation have become focal points for discussion, socialization, and other self-help activities. Already it is widely recognized that these groups are doing much to promote public awareness, to prevent isolation, and to stimulate action. They are to be congratulated for their tireless and unselfish efforts and are one more indication that the learning disabilities movement is coming of age.
